

MACHINISTS' LEADER DEFIES COURT AND OTHER GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

Johnston Exhorts Strikers to Rely on Themselves Alone and Tells Rail Executives They are "Licked to the Queen's Taste."

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 5.—The gage battle was thrown down today to the Harding administration and the federal courts by William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, 35,000 of whose men are involved in the railroad strike.

Standing on the rostrum at a strikers' meeting, forbidden under the terms of the injunction granted Friday in Chicago by Federal Judge Wilkeson, Johnston dubbed the writ a "big noise," and declared he proposed to "stand on his 'inalienable constitutional rights'."

"We don't seem to be able to get justice and adequate food, clothing and shelter from the railroad management or from the president, congress or the Railroad Labor Board," declared the message. "We have tested out these means long and earnestly. We must therefore rely on ourselves and ourselves alone."

This message though sent out today, was written on the day Attorney General Daugherty secured the injunction against the striking shopmen and it is generally believed that the injunction is made by sending out the message.

The message continues with a declaration that "if we stand solid we will win."

The message also carries a strong attack on General Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad, charging him with being responsible for the breaking off of all negotiations "that have so far been attempted."

"The rail executives refused to admit that they are beaten," declares the message. "They refuse to admit that the railroads are falling apart and cannot even attempt to fulfill half the requirements of the American people and are daily growing worse."

"We are labor's hope in the great industrial war that has been raging ever since the world war was ended," the message continues, turning a direct address toward the railway executives.

Notwithstanding all the suppression and oppression, your threats and promises of your cunning and scheming, you are licked to the queen's taste and you and all your associates know it."

The message also contains an attack on the Railroad Labor Board's assurances to President Grable of the maintenance of way men.

"Promises that were written in sand" is the way the Labor Board's efforts are dismissed.

Bitter attacks on Attorney General Daugherty by name and Federal District Judge Wilkeson of Chicago, by implication, marked Johnston's talk.

Remarking that "the railroads must surely be desperate when compelled to resort to such tactics and call Daugherty to do the dirty work," he continued.

"Here's a man, a creature of the administration, assuming to set aside all the rights guaranteed by the constitution and here's a court so subservient to special private interests that they go beyond all bounds and set aside the constitution. What excuse has a judge for invading the constitution and setting aside laws and guarantees?"

"There is only one answer—obligation to corporation interests overshadowing the obligation to support the constitution."

IRISH REBEL BANDS UNITE IN CORK

De Valera Apparently Not Ill—Dall Meets Saturday—Irish Conditions Horrify Archbishop Curley.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Dublin, Sept. 5.—The rebel bands of Eamonn de Valera and Erskine Childers were reported today to have joined forces and to be operating in the region of Kilworth in the northern part of County Cork. If this report is true, it disposes of the rumor that de Valera was lying at the point of death from double pneumonia.

The irregulars are suffering from lack of food and ammunition and according to information reaching Richard Mulcahy, commander-in-chief of the Free State's their morale has become very low.

Belief is growing that the anti-treaty forces will not attempt to block the Daily Breeze when it meets here Saturday. There is much speculation as to whether de Valera will attempt to come to Dublin to attend the session.

The Free Staters have withdrawn their guards from the Ulster frontier in the Donegal region, indicating that a peace agreement between Dublin and Belfast is being worked out.

Archbishop Curley, of Baltimore, in a sermon at Athlone expressed deepest sorrow over the situation here.

"I am returning to the United States horrified and well nigh stupefied by the picture Ireland is presenting to the world," said the archbishop. "If the Irish bishops were powerless, who could the archbishops do?"

LESS COMMOTION ABOUT INJUNCTION

Labor Day Passes Without Necessity For Repressive Measures—Daugherty And Labor's Attorneys Prepare For Monday's Argument.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 5.—To all outward appearances, the industrial warfare precipitated by the drastic Daugherty injunction had settled down today to a period of "watchful waiting" on the part of both the government and organized labor, pending the outcome of next Monday's court action as to the permanency of the far-reaching injunction.

Government officials generally breathed sighs of relief that Labor Day had passed without developing any outward incidents that might force the government's hand. While steadfast in asserting that the Daugherty injunction will be enforced to the letter, officials were just as well pleased that the "enforcement" called for no spectacular display on a day that is peculiarly labor's.

Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty returned to Washington today to attend the regular meeting of the cabinet as did the rest of the absentee members of the president's official family.

Hundreds of telegrams from all parts of the country dealing with strike conditions and minor violations of the Chicago injunction were upon Daugherty's desk when he returned. It is not probable however, that any of these will furnish the basis for "drastic action" prior to Monday's court battle.

Daugherty's aides have been busy collecting reports on strike conditions which will be used by the attorney general when he appears before Judge Wilkeson to argue that the most drastic restraining order ever issued in an industrial dispute, be made permanent.

So far as labor's attitude went, spokesmen for the striking railway shopmen asserted that the union leaders would quietly pursue their policy of making the strike effective, regardless of the injunction. It was evident, however, that for the most part the labor leaders concerned will pursue their courses without any tooting of horns.

Service of the temporary restraining order has not yet been made on a majority of the defendants named today, according to information on hand at the department of justice. The week end and the holiday together had acted for delay. It was said, but today and tomorrow should see service upon practically all those named.

Congress came back to Washington today also, but its activities will be confined to the senate's efforts at passage of the coal distribution and profiteering legislation requested by President Harding.

HARRY AND RUBE MONDAY'S HEROES

Harper Pitched Colonials To Victory In First Game But Forsythe Took Tough 13-Inning Contest From Them In Second, 3 to 2.

Third Installment.

"But how about them two games played that Labor Day, grandpop?" asked the youngster before the old man had a chance to lie down. "This paper says the Astors and the Colonials were going to play two games that Labor Day. Did they play them, and who won?"

"Well," answered the old man as he got up and looked over the papers the youngster had, "I don't suppose you will let me rest till I tell you about them two games. Just listen then, and I'll tell you about them."

"We were going to play a morning and afternoon game that day, but it rained pretty hard in the morning, though, and they played both games then."

"Son, then games was quite a while ago, but I ain't never forgot either one of 'em. I ain't never forgot the first game because we got an awful trimmin', 11 to 3 it was, and I ain't never forgot the second game, because we won it, 3 to 2. Went thirteen innings before we won, though, and son, it was a corker."

"Well, I'll tell you about the first game first, because I want to get it off my mind. Them Colonials had that same pitcher I've been tellin' you about, Harper, in the box, and he had an easy time this game. We got a run off him early in the game, first inning I think it was, but after that he settled down and our feller couldn't do nothin' with him. Let up a bit when he had a big lead, but he didn't have to work hard after the first couple of innings."

"Our feller had a new pitcher in the box that day, feller named McGarey. Got him from some club up-state and was supposed to be good, but let me tell you son, you had to be more than good to beat them Colonials. Anyway, them Kingston feller hit everything he had and then asked for more. Had to take him out of the box in the fifth inning, I think it was, and put in another feller named Robinson. I don't recollect just now where he came from, but he was better'n the first feller. Colonials scored one or two runs off him, but they didn't need any more."

"Well, us feller from Rhinebeck was pretty downhearted after the first game, but we chipped up a bit when we saw Rube Forsythe, that same feller I've been talkin' you about, goin' out in the box for the second game. Our feller looked like a different team when Rube went out to pitch, and let me tell you son, they played like a different club."

"Now, Rube didn't have no cluck that day, boy, let me tell you that. Them Colonials had a feller named Culloton pitchin' for them, and that feller could pitch. Used to play on one of them college teams in New York, Fordham, I think it was, and there wasn't many better'n he was around this part of the country."

"Well, appears like this feller Culloton got way to a bad start, and our team scored two runs on him in the first two innings. First feller up for us, Dewey, our first baseman, cracked out a hit, and made second base on a sacrifice. Them Kingston feller got Dewey out, but we got another man on base while they was doin' that, and this other feller, Russell, our captain, scored when our catcher, Charley Carpenter, made a hit to right field. That gave us a start, and we got another one in the next inning."

"This feller Coyle I've just told you about dropped a throw on one of our men and he was safe. Didn't do it often, but they all do it once in awhile. Well, our man stole second base and this feller Dewey made another hit and sent him home."

"Them Kingston feller couldn't do nothin' with Forsythe until the fourth inning, and then they made a run. This same feller Dahn, used to play with one of the Poughkeepsie teams, made a two base hit off Forsythe. Next batter hit one to our shortstop and he booted it and this feller Dahn scored."

"Them Kingston players made another run in the sixth, I think it was, and tied the game up. A little lucky break on their part that they scored, but any way they did."

"Son, them two games was quite a ways back, but I ain't never forgot our ninth inning, and I don't think nobody there ever forgot it. If I lived through that I think I ought to live forever."

"First feller up for us in that inning got a one-base hit, and we commenced to yell. Next feller for us got a lucky hit, and son, the next man did the same thing. Bases full and nobody out and Rube Forsythe at the bat. Now, Rube was hittin' 'em pretty hard that day, and you could a' heard a pin drop when Culloton threw the ball. Forsythe cracked out a fly to right field and feller named Schwab for them Kingston caught the ball. Son, if you ever grow up to be an outfielder, I hope you have an arm like that feller Schwab. Threw the ball right in to the catcher and he didn't have to move one inch out of the way. Catcher tagged our man comin' in from third and made a double play. Next man went out on a fly and the inning was over. I think I lost about nine pounds when them putouts was bein' made."

"Well, Rube was pitchin' wonderful ball all along, and them Colonials couldn't do nothin' with him. Every once in a while Kingston would get men on bases, but couldn't drive the winnin' run across nohow. And we couldn't do nothin' with Culloton neither. Our feller hit him hard-er'n them Colonials did Forsythe, but he was strikin' our men out right and left. Had fourteen for the game, I think."

Began to look as if neither side was goin' to score any more when the thirteenth started. I ain't superstitious, son, but I guess some of them Kingston people has been ever since that game. Anyway, we scored the run we needed to win the game in that inning, and this is how we did it:

"First man up for us, Carpenter, got a hit. I think it was his third for the day. Next feller up hunted him down to second. Our third baseman, Esterley, cracked out a hit to left field and Carpenter came home on the hit. That was all we needed. Forsythe didn't allow them Kingston feller to get on base in their half of the inning, and we won the game."

That's the story of them two Labor Day games, son. Now let me take a nap while you look over these scores, and when I get up I'll tell you all about the next game of the series."

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Pleasing Model for the Little Miss 3581. The dress with a convenient closing is the one that will best please the little girl who "helps" to get ready for school or play. This model has attractive lines. It lends itself especially well to crepe, linen or repp.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 6 year size requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. Blue chambray with motifs in a contrasting color would be good for this design.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps for our up-to-date fall and winter catalogue, containing hundreds of designs of Ladies' and Misses' and Children's Patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Oregon's Biggest Cherry Tree. With a trunk six feet in diameter at the base and a spread of branches covering approximately 5,000 square feet, a cherry tree in the Hood river district of Oregon is believed to be the largest tree of its kind in the world.

Colorful Furniture. Chinese red is a color effectively used on willow and porch furniture. It must, of course, be distributed with some discretion in a room, and is most effectively combined with black or a sprig shade of green.

FOR SUMMER WEAR

Rich Afternoon Gown of Steel
Lame and Tinted Lace.Attractive Creation of Prominent Paris
Designer Features Sleeves That Almost Touch Ground.

Paris dressmakers are giving much attention to sleeves in gowns for afternoon and evening wear, according to a fashion correspondent who describes one creation as having immense sleeves—long enough to almost touch the ground.

The foundation was a fourreau of steel lame. The neck was cut square and not at all décolleté, and there were long, absolutely tight sleeves finished with petal cuffs which drooped over the hands. Over this fourreau was draped—in a mysterious fashion—a cloud of lace dyed a vivid orange—the "tango" shade which is having so much success in Paris.

This was a model which would certainly make a sensation at a smart wedding, or any afternoon festivity during the summer. It would look lovely in silver lame veiled in dark blue lace, or pale gold lame veiled in black or dark purple. Tinted lace is the craze of the year—and also tinted fur. I have seen wonderful things done with waxed lace in a bright puce shade, combined with puce purple rabbit and silver passementerie.

Afternoon Gown of Steel Lame and

One of the evening gowns recently seen had the armholes of sleeves there were none—cut down so low under the arms that one gaped with amazement. I have seen this idea exploited by several leading dress makers in the rue de la Paix, and I must say that it is not in the best taste. One of these models had such a big armhole that the point underneath the arm almost reached the normal waist line.

Adapted of stage dresses, I must record the fact that they all show a surprisingly long waist line. In this respect there seems to be but one opinion.

FASHION NOTES OF INTEREST

Grapes are used on some of the straw hats. They shine and shimmer and are fairly lustrous in quality, which adds much to their decorative effect.

Many of the dainty organdie frocks shown this season have self fabric sashes and for warm days the crisp freshness of a frock made entirely of organdie is very pleasing.

One who remembers the old days of blazers in bright blue, red, green or yellow and white, is interested in sport jackets of the same colors in stripes. Of course, the shape of the jacket is entirely different, but the effect of the striping is the same.

Moire silks that were prominent in Paris last autumn seem to be attracting more attention in this country now than when the vogue was new. The softer silks of this finish lend themselves interestingly to the new draped models.

A big mauve straw hat has hyacinth blue worsted flowers worked on it. Not flat flowers, but big puffy ones, two or three piled against the side of the crown, and one of purple. The edge of the hat is buttonholed with blue wool. The hat is, of course, drooping down toward the shoulders.

An interesting trimming, used on some of the newest organdie frocks is embroidered motifs in silhouette effect. Solid embroidery always seems a little heavy for a fabric so light and dainty as organdie, and the floral or conventional design done in silhouette is very effective. Sometimes the motifs are very small and again rings or discs as large as small saucers will appear, scattered here and there on the frock.

All Things Good and Useful.

There is not one grain in the universe, either too much or too little; nothing is to be added, nothing to be spared; not so much as any one particle of it, that mankind may not be either the better or the worse of it, according as it is applied.—L'Estrange.

LACE FEATURE OF THIS GOWN

The vogue for lace is distinctively expressed in this lovely gown. The orchid and violet tone of the hat match the girle, which might have been borrowed from the Orient.

LACE AND NET FOR DRESSES

Combination Affords Dainty Party
Frocks for the Little Girls Two to Six.

An exceptionally dainty party dress for a little girl of two to six years was fashioned of the fine cream colored net. There was a straight yoke, really merely two rather wide bands of the net, embroidered and held on the shoulders with bows of ribbon, and a straight skirt of net with embroidered band at its edge was gathered on to this yoke. The underslip of tulle matched the ribbon bows on the shoulders.

Another little girl ready for a party was frocked in pale pink tulle with overdress of white georgette. The tulle foundation is banded in three rows of transparent silver braid or silver ribbon, and the little overdress, cut in scallops all around the bottom, is edged with a narrow double ruffle of self fabric, the same finish being applied to the sleeves. Tiny knots of French flowers add the final trimming touch. This dress opens a few inches in the back, so it may be slipped over the head, a little knot of flowers being caught at the fastening.

Most of these little party frocks are designed to be worn over lace undergarments instead of with bloomers, the bloomers being usually featured only with the more practical garments. Some party dresses of white or colored organdie have matching bloomers, but when the frock is of a silk material it is not usually so equipped.

Very sheer net and fine soft lace were combined to fashion a charming party dress for the tiny girl's older sister in her teens, a ribbon sash supplying the finishing touch. The little sleeveless bodice is a succession of lace ruffles placed close together, one above another, over a net foundation. The skirt is a sort of petal affair, each petal or point being lace ruffled. A plain net foundation serves as an immediate background. A silk slip in white or any of the pastel shades may be worn under the frock, of course, and the sash may either carry out this color tone or a black sash may be worn if preferred.

ARRAY OF CHECKED FLANNELS

Material Developed Into Lovely Outfits
Plays Important Part in Juvenile Apparel.

The greatest array imaginable of checked flannels is in evidence at the present time, and some lovely outfits are being developed from these materials. They even play a part in juvenile apparel, cunning little smock and bloomer costumes for little girls showing the combination of checked and plain flannel, the checked sometimes being used for the smock and again for the bloomers.

Knitted outer garments are unusually smart and varied this season, many costumes of the cape and sleeveless dress type being shown, while slipover sweaters with skirts to match are displayed in generous numbers. A particularly interesting and practical costume of the skirt and slip-over sweater type featured a two-tone line plaid, the practical feature being that a narrow braid matching the color of the knitted-in plaid was stitched on the skirt at intervals its entire width and length, the idea being to prevent the stretching of the garment when it is worn.

Fancies in Fans.

Fans, which are sponsored this season in all shapes and sizes, are quaint or striking, according to their whim. Soft, single-feather ostrich fans are lovely with slim-dance frocks, while small black-lace fans add a touch of quaintness to the frock of bouffant silhouette.

Stylish Colors.

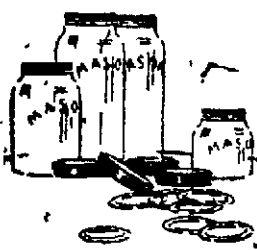

Millinery colors are strong. Reds are still good; the ruddy rusts and buffans are popular and judiciously gaining favor.

Merely an Opinion.

A controversy has been raised over the question whether "the first hundred years are the longest" or "the first hundred years are the hardest." We hazard the opinion that the first hundred years are the most plausible—Exchange.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

"The time is never lost that is devoted to work," wrote Emerson. Work and thrift are two of the chief essentials of progress, but it is just as necessary that we use judgment and care in our work as it is that we work at all.

The term "hard work" is often applied as one of the needful qualities of individual success, but "intelligent work" more aptly describes the processes that bring up-building. While it is true that those who get on best in the world are hard workers, they do so because they plan their work so that every moment will count for the most. There are those who literally work themselves to death, and yet accomplish little in the way of advancement.

Let us understand that it is the part of thrift to do our work intelligently. It is thrift to study each detail connected with our daily duties and in this way find out if we are wasting time and energy.

No matter how menial our tasks, we should not become mere automatons. It should be our constant endeavor to find means, if possible, for doing our work more efficiently. If it were not for the fact that thoughtful men have constantly sought to improve methods of work we would not have the marvelous gifts of science and invention that have become necessities of our daily lives.

Try to do your work better and more efficiently. This is true thrift. It will bring results in your development and progress.

No matter how you are employed, the chances are that, by giving close study to the details of your work, you will be able to find ways of increasing your usefulness.

Hard work, intelligently done, cannot fail to bring successful results in every rightful walk of life.

Albert L. Johnson, former army aviator, prominent socially in Cleveland and New York, and husband of Peggy Marsh, actress and dancer, accidentally shot himself in the breast while in the camp of "Jack" Chittard, dancer and former husband of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, on Lake Chautauque, near Plattsburg, N. Y. Johnson, who was spending the summer there with his wife, was cleaning his revolver. Before her marriage to Johnson Peggy Marsh brought suit against the estate of Henry Field, 2d, grandson of Marshall Field multi-millionaire Chicago department store owner, for a share of the estate for her son, Anthony Marsh, alleging he was Field's son. The Field family settled $100,000 on her. Johnson has legally adopted the baby.

THE WAITING GAME.

John M. Keynes, the Englishman who blabbed official secrets of the Paris Peace Conference imparted to him confidentially, is now, according to report, working serious mischief in Germany by telling the Germans to pay no attention to the demands of the French because they are only "bluffing." The Germans would be much wiser to take the advice of their own Ludendorff who, in a recent interview obtained by the New York Herald, warned the German people that France will not let Germany off and accept bankruptcy, that the French armies will certainly settle the reparations differences unless Germany enters into a satisfactory working agreement; that the French armies are abundantly capable of doing so, that the Stunnes program of profitable procrastination will meet disastrous failure, and that the only way out for Germany is to make the best bargain she can and settle her reparations bill.

The Germans can follow this same advice and yet look with hope and confidence toward the future, for the time seems to be coming fast when Germany will overshadow France by the mere physical weight of numbers. After the war France showed a temporary increase in birth rate, but now she has more than fallen back, and it is predicted that in less than thirty years at the present rate France will have hardly more than half her present population. If for economy's sake or for any other reason the French continue to turn a deaf ear to the urgent call for a "heroic birthrate," all Germany needs to do is to hide her time after settling her reparations bill for the sake of peace and trade upbuilding during the intervening years.

THE AMERICAN BREAKFAST.

If Oliver Wendell Holmes were writing his "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" in our day its gentle satire would no doubt include the expert medical opinion which two or three decades ago blacklisted the heavy American breakfast and now faces about and puts the stamp of its approval on the old-time institution. For a generation we have been taught that only manual laborers can stand meats, hot breads, etc. at the early morning meal and that, for brain workers especially, an approximation of the Continental European breakfast of coffee and a roll was the proper thing. But now the Medical Review of Reviews has obtained professional opinion from 46 states and found that 73 per cent of the physicians questioned favor a hearty breakfast even for persons of sedentary occupations. The majority view is said to be fairly represented by Dr. Underwood of Mississippi who recommends "a fairly substantial breakfast of fruit, cereal, bacon and eggs, etc." followed by a light luncheon and a heavy meal at 6 in the evening as conducive to "better mental work."

But was not expert medical opinion misguided a generation ago, and is not it misguided now, so far as it attempted or attempts to lay down a general rule for all classes or all of any class? "One man's meat is another man's poison." Some now, as heretofore, thrive on a very light breakfast, a substantial lunch and a heavy evening dinner. Others thrive on a substantial breakfast, a light lunch and a heavy dinner. Still others thrive on three meals of about equal or limited quantity. Many still get satisfactory results from the old American fashion of a substantial breakfast, a heavy midday dinner and a light supper. The hard-working manual laborer in good health can even dine heartily three times a day and "get away with it."

The President is wise to suggest a coal commission none of whose members are either mine operators or miners. A commission torn with internal strife would have to settle itself first of all.

It is better to be robbed than to leave loaded revolvers around for children to play with—as the coroner pointedly remarked at the inquest of a child of five shot by his brother of eight.

Instead of appropriately dying in his boots, a Western highwayman recently died of an ice cream soda, and now d'Annunzio, the daring poet-aviator, is in danger of death from a fall in his garden. Dramatic fitness is not seldom conspicuous by its absence.

Burroughs Nature Club Notes

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Is there any difference between the "popple" and the "poplar" tree?
2. Why do some birds go up to such cold northern spots to nest?
3. Is it all right to keep a squirrel in a cage?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Is the white-tailed deer brown or red?

The coat color depends on season. In late spring to about mid-summer a rather sparse, light reddish coat is worn. This changes, as cold weather comes on, to a mixed brownish gray, the new coat coming in longer and thicker for winter use.

2. What is really meant by the expression "billing and cooing"?

This usually refers to the trick of pigeons or doves in laying their bills together in an affectionate caress. It may also refer to the act of regurgitation, when a parent bird feeds its young by choking up partly digested food into the bill of the young. Pigeons and hummingbirds feed their young by this method, and various other species use it for the first day or so of the infant bird's life.

3. What diseases do flies disseminate?

Typhoid, cholera, tuberculosis, infantile intestinal diseases, leprosy and anthrax germs have all been found on the bodies of flies. Plague germs are suspected as reaching humans from rats, via flies. It is impossible to over-state the evil consequences that may follow visits of flies to human habitation and food supplies.

A THRIVING INDUSTRY.

Delaware County Makes Liquor—Producing Record.

The Hobart, Delaware county, Times says:

During the course of her speech which was delivered at the annual convention of the Delaware county W C T U in Delhi, Mrs. Ella A. Bools made the statement that the enforcement of the Volstead Act throughout the county was 64 per cent efficient. A Lindsay O'Connor, district attorney of Delaware county, who made a temperance speech on the same occasion also made the statement that there was more liquor being manufactured and drunk in Delaware county than ever before in its history. According to these statements, Delaware county mathematically must be about 36 per cent wet—not a very good record for a county that was the second one in New York state where every town in a county voted dry under the local option law.

Market Ratio of Gold and Silver.

At the present price of foreign silver, 68 cents an ounce, an ounce of gold, $20.67, is worth practically thirty times the value of an ounce of silver. The United States government paid a dollar an ounce for silver produced in the United States under a law passed during the World war, provided for selling about 300,000,000 American silver dollars, melted into bullion, to the English government, and for the replacement of these silver dollars by purchase of silver from domestic producers at a dollar an ounce, regardless of its world value. On this basis the ratio of gold to silver value is about twenty to one.

Two-ninths Departed.

The suburban lady's collie is undoubtedly awe-inspiring and toward cats is most aggressive. During the process of serving the Sunday dinner the maid let Lassie escape from the confines of the kitchen into the yard, and soon a tremendous racket was heard. The family rushed to the rescue. A neighbor was just rescuing her cat from the onslaught. "I wish you would keep that dog home," she said lately. "This is the second time he has killed this poor cat."

ASTARDLY PLOT NEARLY SUCCEEDS

Captain Twin Gormley Hears That Human Eye is Susceptible to Certain Color Effects and Hits on Scheme to Defeat Gallupers That Would Have Succeeded but For Roodboy.

"Yes sir, the human eye is susceptible to certain colors," maintained a short stout man wearing rimmed eye glasses, as he leaned back in his chair on the hotel porch.

"Nonsense," retorted his companion, a slenderly built man also equipped with the same style nose glasses.

"I tell you it's so," retorted the stout one "and if you had ever given me a proper study you would find that I was correct," and he launched upon a highly technical description of his experiments along a line of color effects on the eye.

While the argument was at its height Captain Twin Gormley of theaters, who had been an interested listener, touched his companion on the arm asking: "Who are those two chaps?"

"Just two fool scientists spending vacation here," enlightened the stout one in disgusted tones.

While Twin did not agree with his companion's estimate of the two men, he kept his thoughts to himself, and in the evening sought out the stout scientist, and got him to explain his hobby until late in the night. The most important fact in the talk was that a combination of certain colors, if properly selected, would have a rather remarkable effect on certain men.

"Do you think you could look up nine men and from their appearance decide what colors would affect their eyesight?" asked Twin at the close of the discussion.

"Nothing to it," retorted Professor Alexander Ander, "who is there who says that we have learned there is to be learned of that marvelous machine, the human being?"

It was then that Twin broached his plan of giving the professor's series a practical tryout, and the stout one was to be unfolded about further ado.

The following afternoon when the Gallupers trotted out for practice before the big game with the Busters they were somewhat astonished to find their ancient rivals already on the ball field, and it was until the umpire called the game that the Busters trotted out in the diamond.

As they did so a gasp of amazement arose, not only from the Gallupers but from the crowd that had assembled for the closing series in the Mountain League. And there was reason for the gasp for the Busters wore new uniforms, and a combination of colors had never before been seen on the ball field. All of the uniforms had been designed by Professor Alexander Ander and it followed that the Gallupers were astounded and delighted with the appearance presented by the Busters in their new suits.

The question that troubled Twin, however, was would the scheme work, but as in the evening slid by and the Gallupers were unable to touch his offerings he began to realize that the combination of colors worn by the Busters had so affected the eyes of the Gallupers that they were unable to keep their eyes on the ball.

It was not until the eighth frame was drawing to a close that Captain Roodboy realized what was the reason for the light hitting of his fence crackers and his active brain leaped to a solution of the problem, and he called the mascot to his side and handed him some money and told him to hurry back.

When the Gallupers faced the offerings of Twin Gormley in the last frame Roodboy's solution was evident to every one for every Galluper as he stepped to the plate was equipped with dark colored glasses which offset the color combination of the Busters.

What was the result? Why the game ended in favor of the Gallupers by a score of 1 to 0, when Clingson, second sacker of the Gallupers, picked out one of Twin's shoots and shot it over the fence for a circuit clout.

REDUCE ARMIES, ADVISES MACARA

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Sept. 5.—"Cancellation of international debts would be tantamount to provoking a new war," according to Sir Charles Macara, multi-millionaire financier and industrial magnate. "Neither the remission of German indemnity nor the cancellation of war debts will bring back peace and prosperity. The only remedy for this is prompt and drastic reductions of the armies of the world."

Man-Hating Women Combine.
A "secret" society of man-hating women is developing in the artistic centers of London, according to a psychic exponent. During a lecture on "The Great Menace of Ultra Feminism" he said that such a society had been formed and was operating in London, preaching doctrines of sex hatred and was planning to organize a campaign to make all men the slaves of women. He said the inveterate man haters aim at the complete subjugation of man by woman-kind. He further said that the converts to the movement were recruited in large stores, where they are combating men assistants, and also in hospitals where nurses are taught to undermine the doctors. A woman friend of his, he said, had been invited to a formal lecture given by a French woman on sex war, and found herself in a center of this man-hating society, where the lecturer declared that its aim was to keep men in subordinate positions, "just as men have kept women in slavery for centuries."

Hurley, Sept. 4.—The church fair held last week was in every way a perfect success. Thursday night the final financial report was made, showing a result of $152 net to the Ladies' Society in charge. The use of a tent kindly loaned for the occasion rendered the undertaking very convenient and accessible for everyone. The tables were soon cleared of their contents by ready and eager purchasers, while the refreshment and supper committees report perfectly satisfactory and pleasing returns. A very large number of people were present in spite of the inclement weather.

NEW VICTIM OF BOOTLEG FEUD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 5.—The Italian bootleggers' war claimed another victim in Brooklyn today. This brings the total of deaths since the feud started to nearly a score. The victim, evidently an Italian, about 50 year old, was found wrapped in a dirty quilt lying in a gutter in the center of Brooklyn's "Little Italy." The body was attired in expensive clothing but there was nothing in the pockets through which identification could be obtained.

A policeman noticed the bundle and was about to pass it by when his suspicions were aroused by the peculiar contour. He lifted one corner and saw a man's shoes.

Ten detectives and an ambulance were sent to the scene. Examination showed that the man had been shot, stabbed and beaten. The police believe that the murder had been committed elsewhere and that the body was dumped from an automobile.

Judge D. T. Hart, circuit Judge of Marlon, Ill., will try the cases of all the men indicted by the special grand jury for participation in the massacre of non-union miners in the strip coal mine at Herrin, Ill.

UNIVERSAL COMPANY KEEPS LARGE STOCK ON HAND

Shipments of the Universal Road Machinery Company of this city during the past week have been a 10 ton bin and screen to the Aroc Construction Company of Alpine, N. J., two carloads of reinforced concrete pipe for culverts to the state highway department and a Raymond automatic dump body for a Ford truck to Town Superintendent Baker of Accord.

Another carload of concrete pipe was just received at their factory for the convenience of contractors and town officials so that they are not obliged to hold up their work while waiting rail shipments.

The keeping in stock of a large number of road machines and pipes of various sizes is proving to be of great assistance to the town superintendents in Ulster and adjoining counties. At the coming exhibit to be held in Kingston during the month of October of products made and handled here, the Universal will show an entirely new type of road machine that can be used either with horses or tractors.

FRUIT GROWERS MAY PRODUCE OWN TOBACCO DUST.

Agronomists at the Experiment Station at Geneva are planning an exhibit at the state fair at Syracuse which will show the results of some experiments with tobacco in an effort to determine whether the fruit grower can grow tobacco economically for use in his dust and spray mixtures. The station will not be ready to make definite recommendations until the crop has been harvested.

Hospital Aides Needed.

There is urgent need at the hospitals of the Veterans' Bureau for reconstruction aides and assistants in occupational therapy and physiotherapy in connection with the rehabilitation of disabled soldiers, sailors and marines. Information may be secured from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or at the local post office.

National Chemical Exposition.

Monday, September 11, the eighth national exposition of chemical industries will open in Grand Central Palace. It will bring together on four floors of the huge show building the most comprehensive display of what in the past six years has grown to be one of the biggest industries in the United States.

Seeing and Hearing.

The eye is a haven at which the treasure fleets that sail through the ocean of light are unloading, and their stores deposited in the vaults of the intellect; but it is through the whispering gallery of the ear that man reaches the heart of his fellow man most quickly and surely. Light and knowledge are for the eye, love and music for the ear. Hearing often times seems to me a nobler sense than sight, with richer benedictions attendant on it; with tender and holier offices assigned to it. Man's voice, tuned by sympathy, moving to the modulations of intelligence and love, may perform the sweetest and holiest ministry of human life. Do you wonder, then, that with books and with friendly talk I have learned to bear my affliction cheerfully.—William Henry Milburn.

"I'm the KEN man"

WITHIN a few days, perhaps today, a man will ring your door bell and say, "I'm the KEN man." He will have something important to tell you—something interesting—something worth many times the few moments he will need to tell it. He will come as the representative of your Grocer to tell you the story of KEN, That Washes Everything.

An Amazing New Product Made from Corn

You know the value of corn meal as a cleanser! You know it will keep your hands soft and white! You know it will wash and clean without force and harshness.

Corn is the most important ingredient of KEN. It is the combination of corn with the other materials of natural detergent properties that has produced this most wonderful of cleansers.

KEN is neutral, with no free caustic alkali. It washes and cleans in a gentle manner; the dirt particles are loosened, absorbed in the solution and easily and quickly rinsed away.

A delight for dainty fabrics, KEN is equally effective for the coarser and harder washing and cleaning. Clothes look fresh and new when washed with KEN. They have that sweet and wholesome smell. They wear longer because they can be washed and cleaned without rubbing or boiling. Even the yellowness caused by the use of ordinary soap will usually disappear after a few washings with KEN.

KEN is equally effective in hot, cold, hard or soft water. It needs no help from ammonia, borax or soda. You require only the one product for every washing purpose. KEN is economical, too. The 10¢ package contains nearly half as much more than the ordinary package of flaked or powdered soap, and you use less of it.

AUGUST COOL BUT CROPS GROW WELL

August has been a month of generally favorable weather for farm operations, according to a summary of weather and crop conditions for the month just received from the Ithaca office of the weather bureau. Although showers, deficient sunshine, and some hail damage were reported the first week of the month, crops grew well during the rest of the month. Temperatures were somewhat normal, but sunshine was adequate.

Heavy local thunderstorms on August 23 and 25 did considerable damage to bridges, roads, railroads, field crops and fruit in parts of the central lake counties, and the vicinity of New York city, experienced heavy showers on August 26, the report says.

HAVERLOCK COMPANY TOOK ONLY MORAL RECRUITS

In the window of Safford & Scudder, jewelers on Wall street, is shown an old poster bearing the date August 8, 1862. The poster is the property of Hiram Woolsey and is one which was used during the Civil war to advertise for recruits for Col. George H. Sharp's "Washington Guards." The poster reads: "Recruits wanted for the Haverlock company to be attached to 'Washington Guards'." Col. George H. Sharp, and is signed by P. W. Nichols, captain; A. Austin, 1st lieutenant; J. R. Burghans, 2nd lieutenant. The statement that the company will be officered by Christian men and that the members will abstain from profanity, gambling and intoxicating liquors appears on the poster and that was one of the conditions upon which recruits were received.

H. WESTLAKE COONS TELLS WHY HE ENTERED RACE.

Candidate for Republican Nomination for Congress in the 27th District "States His Objections" and Offers His Platform of Principles.

To the Editor of The Freeman:

Your readers are by this time aware that I am to enter the Republican Primary, on September 19th, in opposition to Charles B. Ward, of Sullivan County, as a candidate for Member of Congress from the 27th Congressional District.

Mr. Ward, having already held this office for eight years, and being now a candidate for re-nomination, I believe that your large constituency is entitled to a statement of my position and the reasons why I have offered my name to be proposed at this time.

I would therefore thank you for the courtesy of publishing this communication.

Mr. Ward is known throughout the District as a "good fellow" and a "free spender," whose large inherited fortune, it is frankly acknowledged, has been the chief factor in causing him to be selected to represent this District in Congress for four consecutive terms. It is generally conceded that but for his wealth he would never have been considered an available candidate for such a responsible position. No large endowment of ability or accomplishment has ever been claimed for him.

As an American citizen, I believe that there could be no more pernicious and un-American doctrine, and none more directly opposed to the principles upon which this great nation was founded, than that any man merely by virtue of his wealth, should be elevated to public office, and kept there year after year. Such a practice violates the entire spirit of our democratic government. What chance would Abraham Lincoln have had under such a system?

During his long term of office Mr. Ward has acquired such reputation for neglect of duty, that he has been described by an opposition newspaper as "The Champion Absent-ee." This statement I have not seen challenged. We are told by those who have examined into the matter, that the records of Congress show on his part a most flagrant and inexcusable failure to understand the fact that he was elected by his constituents to be their active and responsible representative, and that his seat is too often empty when important affairs of State demand his presence and attention.

In these uncertain days, when the business interests of the country are facing conditions which were never before dreamed of, when uncounted millions of investments in industry are in actual jeopardy, when labor faces unemployment and privation, when the savings upon which depends the existence of widows and orphans are threatened, when the best thought of every citizen is needed to restore the country to normalcy, to establish better relations between capital and labor, and to give the farmer a fair assurance that he will receive his just share of the proceeds of his labor; when, in short, the finest genius of the country should be continuously and continuously at work to solve the tremendous problems which confront us; and to establish America upon a substantial basis of prosperity—in these days how can we permit a confirmed habit of absenteeism on the part of the Representative of an important District like this? What justification can be urged for that European pleasure trip which Mr. Ward saw fit to enjoy during the busy and strenuous days of the last session of Congress?

This is a Hudson River District, and is vitally interested in canal and river traffic. It is important to us, as it is to New York State as a whole, that the canal system, upon which we have lavishly expended our resources, should be developed, and the harbors of New York State maintained. It is essential that the monstrous proposition to expend hundreds of millions of dollars upon the St. Lawrence waterway, running through foreign soil, should be strenuously and effectively opposed. Yet we have been humiliated to observe that in all the agitation concerning this project, the activity and influence of Congressman Ward seems to have been entirely negligible. In fact the burden of carrying on the campaign was thrust upon our great Governor Nathan L. Miller, who has thus far conducted the fight in a brilliant manner, and who, if re-elected, will continue the struggle against this great effort to put through a work which would mean an irreparable injury to the commerce of the Empire State and at the same time an added taxation upon the taxpayers of the State of probably $200,000,000 or more.

I believe that we should have a Representative who would actively take up such matters of great public interest, and who would thus become a powerful and influential factor in their solution.

Mr. Ward has been in Washington during the most important period of public activity that we have had since the Civil War. If we could point with unshaken pride to every detail of his war record, it might be possible to overlook some other errors and omissions on his part. But so far from feeling a sense of pride, we are overwhelmed with humiliation when we observe the fact that one of the most disloyal and un-American votes ever cast by any Congressman was cast by Mr. Ward during the trying days of the war period.

We shall not soon forget how the entire world looked to America for the food which was needed to keep the Allied armies in the field, and to give the vital nourishment to the members of civilized society; and how every housewife responded so nobly to the demand that we save the most important cereals and grains by substituting the less desirable ones in our daily rations; and how we all gladly submitted to the dictates of our Government, and sacrificed our personal comfort and pleasure, in order that the righteous cause of the Allies might prevail, and civilization be saved. Nor shall we forget that in the interest of conserving food for the same cause, a reasonable and necessary bill was introduced in Congress, establishing a limit to the amount of grain and cereals which might be used in the manufacture of liquors. It was a war measure, pure and simple, and not based upon any theory of temperance or prohibition. It was a measure that meant life and death to thousands of men and women throughout the world; that meant the proper food for the boys who were fighting upon the battle field or struggling against disheartening conditions in the trenches.

No real American could have questioned the justice or necessity of this law. Yet Mr. Ward, our Congressman, so far forgot his loyalty and allegiance to his country, and every claim of humanity and justice, that he actually cast his vote in opposition to the bill. In the entire Congress of the United States, consisting of nearly 500 members, there were but four others who dared thus to outrage and defy the patriotism of the Nation. Those votes accomplished the defeat of the other four men in their respective Districts, and the 27th District of New York, the fine American District in which we live, is the only District which has continued in office any of that infamous quintet who thus voted in effect for the Kaiser and the triumph of his arms.

Mr. Ward has utterly failed to represent this District on any and all questions, bearing upon the moral issues. He was a steadfast opponent. He fought the 18th amendment to the end, and has persistently opposed the Volstead Act, which carries out the provisions of the amendment and gives it force. He has consistently supported every bill and act which was aimed at the vitality of the 18th amendment, unmindful of the fact that the very basis of this Government, and its permanence must be a proper regard for our Constitution and our laws, and that any action which undermines such regard is subversive of our entire constitutional system.

He has done all this in the face of the fact that the District which he claims to represent was nearly all dry through local option even before the prohibition amendment took effect.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT.

fact. He has utterly flouted and ignored, the decent, self-respecting, loyal American citizens who compose the population of his District.

As a final insult, and as an indication of his intellectual calibre, he declared in his speech of acceptance at the unofficial convention at Kingston on August 10th, that he is now more than ever opposed to Prohibition.

We submit to the Republican voters that this entire record must arouse anything but pride, and that Mr. Ward, after his eight years of misrepresentation, should be allowed this year to remain at home, and in the future devote his fortune to activities outside the field of politics.

The above statement of my objections to Mr. Ward will indicate my position on the questions to which attention has been directed.

For myself allow me to state that: I am a Republican because I believe in the principles of the Republican party, and in the practical efficiency which has been characteristic of its administration of public affairs.

I believe that the welfare of this party, as of the country, demands the elimination of Mr. Ward from its list of office holders. No party can afford to violate the conscience of its supporters.

I am anxious that our splendid President, Warren G. Harding, be supported by a Congress which shall prove itself worthy of its great trust. I believe in the constitutional theory of democracy which offers equal opportunities to the humble dweller in the cabin and the man of large wealth—a square deal to every man, rich or poor.

I believe in the Constitution of the United States, without excepting any paragraph or any amendment. It is the Supreme Law of our land, and must be revered and obeyed. The laws enacted to give force and effect to the Constitution itself, and must resolve the same measure of respect.

FALLEN METEOR FOUND IN DUTCHESS COUNTY

Deputy Sheriffs Thomas Zimmer and John Ebberke of Dutchess county reported Monday the discovery of a large lump of metallic substance in the grass on a mountainside, between Cold Spring and Beacon, which they believe is a fallen meteor.

The substance, about two feet square, was found lodged in the ground, where it had evidently fallen recently. There were no marks around anywhere to indicate anybody had visited the spot which is in the uninhabited mountain region. Residents of northern Putnam county reported having seen two shooting meteors recently.

Oldest Lutheran School.

When the Synod of New York holds its 15th annual convention at Hartwick Seminary, Otsego county, New York, from September 11th to 15th, there will also be celebrated the 125th anniversary of the founding of the Seminary. Hartwick, the oldest Lutheran School in America, and one of the oldest schools of religion on the continent, was founded through the will of Rev. John Christopher Hartwick, an American of German birth, who died in 1795 after serving Lutheran congregations in the colony and state of New York for more than 30 years.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT.

Without this our government is in danger.

I believe that a "public office is a public trust." If nominated and elected to represent you in Congress, I pledge my full endeavor to carry out these principles on the basis of a 100 per cent Americanism.

QUICK ACTION ON WAR GOUGER BILLS

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Sept. 5.—Legislation desired by Attorney General Daugherty to make more effective efforts of the government in the prosecution of war grafters and profiteers, will be passed by the house as soon as a majority of members can be secured and held in Washington, Chairman Volstead, of the house judiciary committee stated today.

Two bills drafted by the department of justice are before the house, one making effective throughout the country any federal court order compelling the attendance of witnesses summoned by the government, and the other permitting trial of the accused in the federal court district where he resides or is located.

Absence of a majority of the house prevented these bills from being put on passage last Friday, Volstead said. It may be necessary that a special order of the house will be required to get the bills up but this order will not be refused by the house rules committee, Volstead hopes to pass both bills during the present week.

Opposition to the legislation centers about the bill widening the government's powers to sue trials in the courts. As drawn by the department of justice, this bill makes a permanent law. Several lawyer members of the house would have it a temporary law, limited in time, to cover the special class of cases for which it is now designated.

FINALS TODAY FOR DAVIS CUP

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 5.—The destiny of the Davis Cup will be decided today on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club when the Americans and the Australians will meet in the final matches of the challenge round. Two singles matches are scheduled and the challenging Aussies must win both to come into possession of the trophy, thanks to the fact that America already has scored two victories in singles against one for the Australians in doubles.

In the first of the two singles, William M. Johnston, of San Francisco, will play Gerald L. Patterson, of Australia, winner of the all-comers' title at Wimbledon, and the feature match of the day should result. If Johnston is beaten, it will then devolve upon William T. Tilden, II, of Philadelphia, the national champion, to dispose of James O. Anderson, of Australia, in the remaining match in order to insure that the trophy remains in America for another year.

Weather conditions were ideal.

Boom in Building Sweeps the Entire Nation

Monthly Total of Building Contracts Exceeds 1921 by $100,000,000.

AFTER nearly eight of the leanest building years the country has ever known, we are emerging into a period of construction that promises to be the greatest in our history. Figures compiled by statistical organizations of national reputation show that the cry throughout the land is now for new residences and store buildings. Years must pass before we make up the shortage accumulated since 1914.

The chart shown above is based on the monthly totals of building contracts expressed in millions of dollars. Its figures are drawn from more than half the States in the Union, and while it does not present a total for the entire country, it makes possible a comparison between the building operations of 1921 and those of this year in areas that are wholly significant. It shows the building slump is over at last, and that 1922 will witness more building construction than has been known in many years.

It will be noted that in 1921, the first year showing any decided improvement in conditions, the highest monthly total was about $250,000,000. During 1922 we have already outstripped this record by nearly $100,000,000. In the months still remaining, the curve may touch even higher figures.

During the war there arose an appalling deficit in building. It was due in part to the fact that the cost of building construction rose much faster than rents. Building was not a profitable investment. It was also due to the fact that both men and materials were withdrawn from our economic life to serve war purposes.

Today the costs of construction have dropped to a point that bears an almost normal ratio to prevailing rent rates. Building again offers a good investment. Added to this consideration is an insistent demand for new houses and stores everywhere. If we are to make up the deficit that faces us, there will be unparalleled building activity for years to come. For the skilled workman in the building trades there is every assurance of a long term of continuous profitable employment.
